

Rosie Cox

Provisional presentation title:

'A conundrum of care: new migration regimes and the UK domestic care sector'

Rosie Cox is Senior Lecturer in Geography and Gender Studies at Birkbeck, University of London. She has a long standing research interest in migration and paid domestic employment, particularly the experiences of au pairs and other low-paid live in workers.

She has published widely on paid domestic employment and is author of 'The Servant Problem: Paid Domestic Work in a Global Economy' (2006 I.B. Tauris); co-editor of 'Dirt: New Geographies of Cleanliness and Contamination' (2007 I.B. Tauris) and co-author of 'Reconnecting Consumers, Producers and Food: Exploring Alternatives' (2008 Berg).