

Kevin J. James is Associate Professor in the Department of History/Centre for Scottish Studies at the University of Guelph. He has published on Irish economic and social history, focusing on the linen trade, and is now engaged in a study of the Irish tourism sector, 1886-1914.